KABELO KAY MONARENG

Art Director / Designer

My passion for advertising and marketing began at Benoni College, where I studied Graphic Design and discovered my ideal career path. I further honed my skills at Wits Technicon, laying a solid foundation for my future endeavors.

I embarked on my professional journey in the advertising industry at FCB (Lindsay Smithers). There, I completed the prestigious Izikho Internship Programme and contributed to high-profile accounts such as FNB, Toyota, Sony PlayStation, and Edgars.

I advanced my career as a Senior Art Director at Young & Rubicam, where I led a team and orchestrated both below-the-line and above-the-line campaigns for notable clients like Pick N Pay, Go Banking, and Boardmans.

Seeking new challenges, I joined O'Brian Marketing, where I worked on an impressive roster of clients, including ABSA, Ekurhuleni Municipality, Metropolitan, BP, Liberty Properties, Sita, PetroSA, Soul City, Tasima, Road Accident Fund, Bedia, Ithala, Khula, XPS, and the Expanded Public Works Programme (EPWP), among others.

Currently, I excel as a Senior Designer (Freelancer) working with FNB, Pulse Comms, and Tau Ya Phoka Group (Pty) Ltd., bringing extensive experience and creative expertise to every project I undertake.

EXPERIENCE

As a seasoned freelancer, I've honed the ability to seamlessly manage multiple roles within each project, ensuring end-to-end ownership from conceptualization to execution. This encompasses both the creative and strategic business dimensions, requiring consistent collaboration with clients, suppliers, and stakeholders—a dynamic akin to Meta's cross-functional approach, where creativity and scalability intersect. One of my most effective tools is delivering polished presentations that reflect a deep understanding of the brief, rigorous research, and a clear strategy. Much like Meta's emphasis on impactful storytelling, I prioritize crafting narratives that are visually compelling, logically structured, and aligned with overarching goals, whether for a startup or a global brand.

While freelancing has been my primary focus, I've also held leadership roles in prominent organizations, including Senior Art Director at Young & Rubicam, where I led creative initiatives and managed cross-functional teams. At O'Brian Marketing and later as Creative Director at Indingliz Marketing, I spearheaded strategy and high-impact solutions, balancing innovation with business objectives—mirroring Meta's ethos of merging creativity with data-driven outcomes. These experiences sharpened my ability to navigate diverse professional landscapes, from agile freelance environments to structured corporate settings, always with a focus on driving results.

What excites me about Meta is its vision for the future—where art direction, immersive experiences, and strategic thinking converge in platforms like Instagram, Facebook, and the metaverse. My career has been a testament to this blend: whether leading campaigns for traditional media or experimenting with digital-first formats, I thrive where creativity meets cutting-edge technology. At Meta, I see an opportunity to amplify this further, leveraging my background in end-to-end project ownership, collaborative leadership, and strategic storytelling to contribute to its ever-evolving narrative.

When it comes to leadership, I follow a set of guiding principles:

- A. Decisiveness is key. I've honed the ability to identify and implement solutions swiftly and effectively.
 - B. Trust and inclusivity matter. I value my team's input and ensure they know their perspectives are not only welcomed but essential.
 - C. Empowerment over control. My goal is to help my team excel in their own unique ways, not to impose my methods on them.
 - D. Inspiration drives success. I lead with encouragement, not force, and believe the best idea should always rise to the top, regardless of its source.
 - E. Logic and transparency guide me. I approach leadership with clarity and openness, ensuring everyone is aligned and informed.

Avoid loan sharks and make it a Happy New Year

The one thing that loan sharks don't tell you is that borrowing money is expensive because of interest and you always end up paying back almost double the amount. Think before you borrow.

- Budget for necessities, gifts and December expenses
- Prioritise your home loan, rent and school fees
- Shop around for cheaper options
- Avoid unnecessary credit
- Remember to save for January expenses

Follow these simple steps above and feel the difference in your pocket this festive season.

Spend wisely, borrow wisely.

- Mix your Stainer into your paint well, with a paint stirrer until you reach your preferred colour.
- The paint is ready to use once an even colour appears.

DO'S & DON'TS

Medal Universal Stainers are best suited for Medal or Safari branded white colour PVA or Enamel Paint. Slight colour variations will occur when Medal Universal Stainers are used with other paint brands. The colour of a Medal Universal Stainer bottle cannot be achieved. Only a pastel shade of the bottle colour can be achieved. Mix Stainer into paint well before use. The maximum amount of Stainer that can be added to paint is 200ml to 20 litres of paint or 50ml to 5 litres of paint. This is the maximum ratio of Medal Stainer to paint that can be mixed. Not following the application described above will lead to compromising the paint causing it to streak. Depending on your application, we advise you mix-in the quantities of paint required. This prevents possible colour variations caused by frequently mixing smaller batches of paint. Always paint a test patch of colour onto your wall.

* Quantity of Universal Stainer in 20 litres of white Acrylic PVA paint. Printed colour may vary from actual paint colour. Always paint a test patch of colour onto your wall.

BIOGRAPHY

NTSOAKI LEDIMO

“My scars are the cracks through which God’s light enters my life”

www.snlfoundation.co.za

Ntsoaki Ledimo was born in the Free State province and grew up in the small town of Welkom. She was raised by loving parents and siblings but her drive and ambition, inspired by her parents soon saw her venture into the world to rediscover herself.

As a young girl, Ntsoaki was always a mommy’s baby, leaning into her for guidance and learning from her how to be in the world, they both shared a love for food, tidiness and being of service to others. These would be principles she would still share with her own children today. Anyone who knows Ntsoaki knows her love for cooking, this is her love language. From family to friends even when she travels, you’ll find Ntsoaki cooking with the locals. Her many special dishes led her to finally open a restaurant in Rustenburg. Not only did she manage it but she was the head chef, making signature meals that saw traffic of everyone from the locals to dignitaries and politicians.

Ever a wanderlust, Ntsoaki spent a great deal of her growing up away from home in Bloemfontein, where she got her education and learned life skills as a young woman and a budding fashion entrepreneur. She then travelled the world, honing her businesswoman journey in the UK before returning home to grow her career further. She spent over 20 years within the Foschini group and AWI Spitz, in the process launching brands for Edcon & Topshop among others. In the UK she worked in major retail companies like Alders, Debenhams as well as Marks & Spencer’s.

Ntsoaki has a varied extensive portfolio in business, having invested in property over the years, she has also invested in lifestyle and hospitality being the business partner in the perfume brand CENL with her partner Carol Bower. Their premium and exclusive perfume line has two variations, CENL, Just Me for women and CENL, Fidelity for men. Ntsoaki and Carol’s luxury business also expanded into a partnership in other ventures like the Carol Bower premium leather bags and various projects they undertake together including Miss World South Africa. Ntsoaki Ledimo is not only an investor in the business, but also one of the official judges of Miss World South Africa over the last two years. Many refer to Ntsoaki Ledimo as a South African walking mannequin, because she’s an avid lover of fashion and style but always prefers to support south African designers. Her wardrobe is littered with gorgeous designs from various top South African designers that she has supported over the years and this has led her to try a hand at styling.

Ntsoaki, ever the businesswoman who knows opportunity when it knocks at her door, has started a fashion brand house called SNL, which stands for Styled by Ntsoaki Ledimo. This has become her beautiful passion project and doubles as a purpose and something that has helped her shift her focus away from troubling health issues to something productive, which has in turn helped her healing.

Life hasn’t been plain sailing for Ntsoaki, who sadly lost her parents. Her father, who was also very close with Ntsoaki, lost his life after a battle with cancer. His battle and struggle inspired Ntsoaki to want to make a difference, little did she know she would have her own battle with the disease.

Ntsoaki Ledimo

Ntsoaki Ledimo was diagnosed with breast cancer in 2024 and thanks to the same resilience she taps into for business, she is a survivor and living through purpose. “My scars are the cracks through which God’s light enters my life.” Ntsoaki believes. She wears her scars proudly as a symbol of hope, inspiring those who also face different cancers in their lives, from illnesses to hardships etc. Ntsoaki’s survival of Cancer has also inspired her to expand her SNL brand into SNL Foundation, where she uses her fashion brand to raise funds that support Cancer education and procuring of mobile clinics. Watching her father struggle with good health care, with only the National Hospital available in Bloemfontein for the general public. Ntsoaki realized that many families end up losing loved ones because of the struggle to access good healthcare. This is something she believes saved her own life and she’s dedicated to making a difference in helping previously disadvantaged communities access good health care.

Through SNL Foundation, Ntsoaki Ledimo has identified a few organizations within the Free State that do amazing work within Cancer Research and is raising funds to help these initiatives. One of the great projects is the Black Women Arise Women’s Health Organization, run by a wonderful woman and mother by the name of Sebatsoa Tsokane from Bloemfontein, a professional nurse, lecturer and specialist in Women’s reproductive health. Sebatsoa has already managed to procure a mobile clinic that helps communities within Bloemfontein and together they are doing the ground work in trying to solicit funding for more mobile trucks. Philanthropy is something that’s been a constant theme in Ntsoaki’s life. She does great work supporting US-born businesswoman Mabaak Congdon-Rock, who runs a great project on the African continent called AngelRock Project South Africa, which empowers young girls from previously disadvantaged communities. Ntsoaki also works closely with businesswoman and friend Tolanda Moya supporting her NPO called Raising the Children, which works to radically change the lives of orphans in South Africa by educating & empowering them and providing mentorship programmes.

Ntsoaki Ledimo’s SNL Foundation is undertaking a great initiative this July. On Mandela Day July 18th they’re taking the former President’s message to heart, that it’s in our hands now. Through her love and passion for fashion, Ntsoaki Ledimo’s SNL will partner with designers Batho Design and House of D&D to design original, exclusive couture that will be auctioned for charity. The proceeds from the auction, which will also include auctioning of art work from House of Oké as well as former President Nelson Mandela’s Presidential Suite from Sanctuary Mandela, will all go towards supporting organizations like Black Women Arise.

The event, hosted at the glamorous Sanctuary Mandela hotel will also include other cancer survivors modelling the different couture outfits as well as being featured in a soon to be released book that chronicles the lives of many other cancer survivors. The book has stories of individuals who survived cancer, those who were affected by losing loved ones to cancer and some of the health practitioners that work around cancer research and treatment. The book was a concept by artist Arthur Dieman.

Ntsoaki Ledimo calls on those willing to lend a helping hand to either donate to the SNL Foundation or attend the couture event and use their 67 Minutes for Mandela by bidding an exclusive couture for charity. Cancer can be beaten, but it will require all of us to join hands and help eradicate it. Speaking of 67 Minutes, Magsi Shikwaga, a visionary in digital marketing and brand storytelling, has played a key role in amplifying the mission of the SNL Foundation. Under Magsi’s leadership, Digital Shero has been instrumental in ensuring the foundation’s initiatives reach and resonate with the right audiences. Through strategic digital campaigns, compelling content, and awareness efforts, Digital Shero is dedicated to elevating the SNL Foundation’s brand and its fight against cancer – empowering communities with knowledge and support. Ntsoaki also collaborates with Batsumi MC, a dedicated motorcycle club committed to raising awareness and educating communities about cancer. Through charity rides, fundraising events, and outreach programs, Batsumi MC strives to support cancer patients and promote early detection—a principle deeply aligned with the SNL Foundation’s values. Their passion for riding fuels their mission to make a meaningful impact in the fight against cancer, uniting riders and supporters for a cause that affects countless lives.

Ntsoaki says her project plans are to expand into the country but she has elected to start in the Free State as that’s where she grew up but also that’s where she identified the most need. The national hospital in Bloemfontein has a huge backlog when it comes to cancer treatment and this delay also adds to the progression of Cancer and the lives that are sadly lost, leaving families without loved ones, breadwinners and friends. “Take cervical cancer for example, certain high-risk HPV types can cause abnormal cell changes that can potentially lead to cancer if left untreated. Delaying colposcopy for these patients, means the condition progresses and when the actual tests for cancer return almost 6 weeks later, the situation isn’t as hopeful,” says Ntsoaki. And she continues that “Health education is also vital, because our people need to know that they can grow their own healthy food options, which goes a long way to improve their health especially if they’re diagnosed with cancer”. Ntsoaki’s own cancer survivor story is piloted on God, good community and her love for food, which she grows most of in her backyard garden. Her passion for food has once again come to her health rescue and she relishes the idea of having a full plate of healthy food, all procured from her home garden instead of expensive restaurants that many of the people she’s trying to help can’t afford. Her new excitement is growing her SNL brand, seeing her couture in major retailers in South Africa and taking a proudly south African brand globally. This is what formulates her gratitude for life, showing up for herself and showing up for others.

Speaking of being there for others, Ntsoaki recently lost her father-in-law, someone who really showed her love beyond words. Ntsoaki’s relationship with “Ntate” was something she felt came from God himself. He took her as if she was his very blood daughter, and anyone who knew of their love knows what a devastating loss this was for her and the family. But she will always lean back into the love and care that Ntate gave her for over 17 years of her life. It’s the sum of all the love from people in her life that inspires Ntsoaki to continue loving with others. Through every loss she has experienced, she has found a way to heal through being there for others. This is why her project falls on Mandela Day, because on this day we are all about being there for others, even if for 67 minutes. Ntsoaki plans to make the event an annual platform that continues to inspire and empower. And she calls on anyone who believes that we are all a community and you’ll never know when it’s your turn to need help, so before that happens, help others.

2-DAY WORKSHOP SERIES

Workshop synopsis

Imagine a world where AI isn't just a buzzword, but a powerful tool, shaping all industries. But with great power comes great responsibility. This intensive 2-day workshop series is your chance to unlock the true potential of AI, while navigating the ethical and practical considerations that come with it. Our journey begins on Day 1, where we demystify AI. We'll peel back the curtain on these powerful technologies, exploring their impact across industries. But AI isn't just about big things; we'll delve into the ethical considerations, learning how to implement AI correctly, aligned to an organisation's strategic goals and capabilities.

Day 2 is all about putting your newfound knowledge into action. We'll explore the exciting world of change management, equipping you with strategies to ensure your organisation towards AI adoption. You'll be guided through building a roadmap for successful AI implementation. This roadmap will be your blueprint for success, ensuring a smooth and measurable integration. Identifying opportunities is key. We'll dive into specific industry applications of AI, helping you recognize how it can transform your own field.

PROGRAMME OVERVIEW

The programme includes the following topics to be covered during the workshop:

DAY 1
AI Governance: Navigating Risks and Responsibility

DAY 2
AI-Driven Transformation: Change Management, Ethics, Industry Applications

DAY 2

PROGRAMME OVERVIEW

BLM FOR natural HAIR

The advertisement features three women showcasing different natural hairstyles: a high bun, a large afro, and braids. To the right, a collection of BLM hair care products is displayed, including a jar of cream, a bottle of oil, and three bottles of shampoo/conditioner in different colors (purple, blue, and red). The BLM logo is prominently displayed on the right side of the banner.
